

CONFERENCE
20 & 21 JUNE 2013
MUNICH

JEWES AND MUSLIMS IN THE RUSSIAN EMPIRE AND THE SOVIET UNION

Grand Choral Synagogue
of St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg Mosque

Jews and Muslims shared the experience of living in the Russian Empire and later the Soviet Union. Both of these groups were profoundly influenced by the policies of these multiethnic and multireligious states. The conference brings together specialists from both fields to allow a comparative approach to Jewish and Muslims experiences from the 1860s until the 1920s. By taking into account the imperial as well as the early Soviet period it shows continuities and changes between the Petersburg Empire and its successor state.

We cordially invite you to attend the conference as well as the evening lecture.

EVENING LECTURE

Michael Stanislawski – Columbia University,
New York

The Jewish and Muslim Enlightenments in Russia: A Comparison

20 June, 8 p.m. – Historisches Kolleg

CONTRIBUTORS

Vladimir Bobrovnikov – Franziska Davies – David E. Fishman –
Adeeb Khalid – Michael Khodarkovsky – Yvonne Kleinmann –
Vladimir Levin – Yohanan Petrovsky-Shtern – Ellie Schinker –
David Schick – David Shneer

CONCEPT

Martin Schulze Wessel (Chair of Eastern European History/
LMU Munich), Michael Brenner (Chair of Jewish History and Culture/LMU Munich), Franziska Davies (Assistant Lecturer of Eastern European History/LMU Munich)

CONFERENCE VENUE

Historisches Kolleg, Kaulbachstraße 15, Munich

ORGANIZATION

International Research Training Group "Religious Cultures in 19th and 20th Century Europe" (LMU Munich, Charles University in Prague)

REGISTRATION UNTIL 13 JUNE

Conferencejam@lrz.uni-muenchen.de www.igk-religioese-kulturen.uni-muenchen.de